School bus schedules Sunday

The complete and official schedule of school bus stops for Pleasanton and Murray Elementary Districts and the Amador High School District will be carried in Sunday's Times.

Also included in this unique community service will be a listing for those San Ramon Unified School District bus stops within the lower end of San Ramon Valley.

The Times, working with the school districts and a local sponsor, publishes these schedules "as the best means of getting this information to the parents and the students," as a spokesman for the Amador Valley High School transportation system explains it.

Watch Sunday's Times for all school bus information, as compiled by the respective school systems and provided this newspaper.

Murray committee holds the line

The Murray School District's Citizens Advisory Committee will meet again Wednesday at Frederiksen School to begin drafting a report and recommendations on whether to convert a school to seventh - eighth grade use or maintain the status quo.

Preliminary indications now are the panel, composed of one parent from each school in the district, will meet at least one more time after next Wednesday to complete deliberations.

However, the CAC continued to hold to the pro-conversion line Wednesday night Following a lengthy review of the survey sent out to parents. the group discussed a "conversion worksheet" put together by Wally Moreskine, district director of auxiliary services and the adminstration representative on the committee.

The sheets laid out in detail prospective conversion of Dublin School and Frederiksen School to use as seventh - eighth grade schools.

Whatever is eventually decided by the board of trustees, it would not be implemented until September of 1977.

At the present time, schools in the Murray district are either kindergarten through sixth grade (Lydiksen, Fallon, Cronin, Murray, Frederiksen), kindergarten through eighth grade (Donlon, Nielsen and Dublin), or seventh-eighth (Wells).

The question asked of Murray district parents was, do you prefer alternative number one, convert an existing K-6 or K-8 school to a 7-8 school, or alternative number two, maintain existing grade level organization: one 7-8 school, three K-8 schools, five K-6 schools

The results, as released Wednesday, are virtually a 50-50 standoff.

An unknown factor now is what, if any, affect Residents - In - Action a petitions containing 1,308 signatures will have on the CAC's final deliberations.

The number of signatures, gathered largely in the Dublin School area but in other school areas as well, gives strong support to NOT converting Dublin School. The petition also states "we are opposed to busing our kindergarten through sixth grade (K-6) children out of their present area."

The petitions, which were presented to Superintendent Donald Williams Wednesday, also state, "Where as the problem of Donlon student housing establishes a need in a definite area; we support the improvement of that facility and/or busing the required number of Donlon seventh-eighth grade students to other school(s) to improve conditions."

The petitions from the RIA and the survey will go to the Murray board at their special meeting of Tuesday, Sept. 7. That meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Murray School.

On the following evening, at Frederiksen, the CAC will commence writing its final report, take a look at enrollment figures for district schools and receive a written report from demographer Alan Richards.

The latter had phoned in a preliminary report to Williams but the latter informed Richards he should send a complete written report for CAC and Murray board review.

A majority of the 35 to 38 persons attending Wednesday's meeting appeared to support the RIA stand.

One audience member drew a small round of applause when she challenged the committee, "How much will you weight the survey in your final conclusions? Why go on with the thought of conversion if our petitions (containing 1,308 signatures) say 'don't convert.' "

Murray trustees are tentatively scheduled to receive the CAC report at their regular meeting of Monday, Oct 4.

Bookful of Murray reactions

Murray School District has a potential best - seller on its hands.

And the authors are approximately 500 parents of Murray district children.

A very "readable" 124 pages in length, the "book" contains the comments of Murray parents that were returned along with their feeling on conversion (of a school to seventh-eighth grade use) versus maintaining the status quo.

The total response of 993, out of 1,277 households comprising a random sample, shows 40 per cent favoring conversion, 43 per cent supporting retention of the existing grade level organization, and 16 per cent with "no stated feeling."

The highest percentage response on the random sample came from the Fallon (95 per cent) and Cronin (93 per cent) school areas. Lowest percentage of responses were from Donlon (67 per cent) and Wells (62 per cent).

A summary, including responses to the initial survey, telephone calls and sending out of a second questionnaire (to those with no phone) produced a 48 to 43 per cent margin in favor of converting an existing K-6 or K-8 school to 7-8 use.

As expected, Donlon K-6 and 7-8 parents were strongly in favor of conversion while Dublin K-6 and 7-8 parents were just as strongly opposed.

Other percentage margins, with those favoring conversion shown first, were as follows; Cronin K-6, 40 to 48 per cent; ponlon K-6, 66 to 26 percent; Dublin K-6, 21 to 71 per cent; Fallon K-6, 37 to 59; Frederiksen, 50 to 41; Lydiksen, 50 to 41; Murray K-6, 47 to 46; Nielsen K-6, 52 to 43; Donlon 7-8, 57 to 24; Dublin 7-8, 29 to 58; Nielsen 7-8, 49-each; Wells 7-8, 44 to 45.

But the book of comments proved the eye opener.

Generally, parents do not want young children bused. Their was also strong sentiment for separating K-6 and 7-8.

Donlon parents alone filled 16 pages.

Just a sampling of the comments, starting with Cronin K-6, goes as follows;

"We like the idea of a separate 7-8 school, but would object to the busing of young children to distant schools. Therefore, we are for conversion (alternative number 1) only with the condition that elementary-aged children would still have a school within their neighborhood."

"I moved to this area so my kids would be close to school and I wouldn't have to worry about them I will not bus my children. My son and daughter are too young to bus. They feel secure in the way it is now!"

More parent comments from all other district schools will be contained in the next two editions.

Wally Moreskine, back to camera, and citizens committee review survey results. Approximately 35 Murray district residents attended meeting. Business manager Phil Chubb, assistant superintendent Heinz Gewing and CAC assistant chairwoman Louanne Dahlin are at right.

Stoneridge crosses a hurdle

PLEASANTON — The Stoneridge overcrossing is about to clear its last hurdle and appears able to get a green light, according to Burch Bachtold of the Caltrans office in San Francisco.

The state conducted a public hearing here June 7 on the overpass and kept the protest period open for 30 days to take any late letters on the proposal.

Now that the protest period has past, all that remains is for the highway department to get an okay from the state historical department. That department takes all construction referrals to determine whether or not any potential historical sites are threatened. Bachtold didn't deal directly with the historical consultant on the project, but it's his understanding that no historical sites are threatened by the overcrossing.

Final historical clearance is expected in a couple of weeks and then the overcrossing should be ready for state and federal authorization.

The final step will be funding of the project. The developer of the Stoneridge Regional Center has worked out a method with the city to finance the overcrossing. So far the state has not signed any agreement with the city and developer, but presumably nothing will get in the way on that arrangement, said Bachtold.

Edgar opens up his books

PLEASANTON — City Manager Bill Edgar became the sixth city official to add his name to a growing list of those in government who must declare their financial interests.

The other five city officials are the five council members. Later in the year other city staffers and perhaps appointed officials will have to list their economic interests.

The listing is required by the Fair Political Practices Commission which was established as a result of voters' passage of Proposition 9 in 1974.

Deputy City Attorney Harvey Levine said yesterday that in the case of staff employees, the investment listing will pertain only to potential conflicts of interest. For example, if the emplyoyee were in charge of purchasing janitorial equipment, he or she would have to disclose any interests in janitorial supply firms and the like.

The FPPC reviews the information submitted by city council members and the city council in turn will act as a similar review agency for the city employees. The city council later this year is expected to determine which city positions, including appointed boards and commissions, will be subject to its review, said Levine.

The council members and Edgar have disclosed their financial assets, even those which don't seem to involve the city directly Edgar filed his report recently, near the anniversary of the date he became city manager. The council members and all others affected by the law must file on the anniversary of the date they joined the city family and must update the report annually on or near that date.

Edgar declared interest in two mutual funds, the Chemical Fund headquartered on Wall Street in New York and the Keystone Fund in Boston. and he also has an interest in the M H. Detrick Co., Chicago. Each interest has a value of less than $10,000. He also listed equity in his home on Neal Street.

Mayor Robert Philcox and Vice - Mayor Joyce LeClaire filed their statements at the time of the city election last spring, though they were not running in that election Mayor Philcox's statement shows that he owns common stock in Pleasanton First National Bank which does not succeed $10,000 value. He also draws a salary from the bank, where he is vice - president. The salary is over $10,000 annually, but less than $100,000.

Philcox collcects rent from dwellings at 5230 Hummingbird Road and 571 Tannet Ct. and draws a $100 a month salary from his city council duties. The rents are more than $1,000 annually, but less than $10,000.

LeClaire listed income of more than $10,000 but less than $100,000 from her spouse's salary.

Council member Bill Herlihy, re - elected last spring, owns stock in Pleasanton First National Bank valued at less than $10,000 and he owns an apartment building at 3351 Norton Way worth more than $100,000. The stock was acquired in 1973 and the building in May, 1970.

Council member Ken Mercer had equity in two homes in Livermore, one at 410 North N St., the other at 741 South H St., the former valued at more than $10,000, the other equity at less than $10,000. He also declared a lot at Alta Sierra Estates in Nevada County worth less than $10,000.

Levine said that Mercer went above and beyond the call of duty in his declaration. Council members need declare only property interests over $1,000 located within the city limits or within two miles of the city limits or within two miles of any property owned by the city at another location

Council member Frank Brandes declared his portion of the Sears and Roebuck profit sharing fund which in his case is more than $10,000 but less than $100,000, and the equity in his home. Mercer, Herlihy, and Philcox also declared equities in their homes.

'Gold Cards' a mystery here

Senior citizens in the East Bay area show a wide range of interest in the Gold Card Discount Program.

The Valley Community Services District is currently trying to enlist the aid of local agencies in standardizing the program; especially in the Livermore — Pleasanton areas. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce has volunteered their services.

The program is a plan to find merchants, organizations and services willing to offer senior citizens savings or special privileges to help supplement their fixed incomes.

Representatives of agencies and clubs dealing with the elderly say response is varied.

"Individual interest is great," says Adele Ostomel. She is the program services coordinator for Alameda County Social Services Agency, Department on Aging "At least in our particular area," she continued. "We've had excellent information made available through the efforts of Harry Henry."

He is a one man crusade for the plan and would like to get it standardized throughout the East Bay Area. Henry is retired and does his work for gold cards on a volunteer basis.

On the other end of the scale, a secretary on the board of directors of Springtown's Homeowner's Association said she has never heard any senior citizen even mention gold cards. Springtown is a housing project primarily for the retired and elderly in Livermore.

Mike Parsons, executive director of Housing Authority of the City of of Pleasanton, also said he has heard nothing from older people on the subject.

"But it sounds like a good idea," he said "I imagine the main problem would be educating and notifying the public."

An official of the Senior Citizens Club in Pleasanton has not heard any requests from members.

"I'm not even familiar with the program," he said.

According to Lillian Snorf, director of Senior Service Center in Livermore, some interest has been shown.

"But it is mostly from out-of-town people who have just moved here. They were used tc them where they lived before."

The Alamo, Danville, San Ramon areas already have a gold card system in operation. Response has been good.

There are 23 other communities in the Bay Area already offering this service. But their methods are not uniform.

Everybody concerned agrees that educating the public and keeping them informed is the main problem.

A last hug for Teacher

LIVERMORE — One last hug for Mrs. O'Dell, and some party cake — and Twin Valley Preschool will be closed down at noon today.

Since the 1960's, the preschool has been serving retarded children from Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin Located in the Presbyterian Church complex at Fourth and L Streets, the facility serves retarded youngsters 18 months to five years old.

But, thanks to a new state law, Alameda County will be taking over the schooling of retarded children at the age of 3. And, since none of Twin Valley's eight current pupils are under 3, the facility will be shut down.

"I'd say it was just temporary though," predicts Edyth Gaskill, president of the Twin Valley chapter of the Alameda County Association for the Mentally Retarded (ACAMR), sponsors of the preschool.

Agreement near on pipeline buy-in pact

DUBLIN —Agreement is apparently near between the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) and the East Bay Dischargers Authority (EBDA) on the buy-in cost for the proposed valley sewage pipeline tie-in to the large super sewer.

LAVWMA project director Dan Murphy, at a meeting of the board last night, said the buy-in cost has been tentatively set at approximately $5.5 million. Another 30 per cent was added to that figure for ccosts, as well as engineering, inspection, administration and legal expenses, bringing the total buy-in figure to $7.9 million.

This is well within the range of LAVWMA consultants' estimates. They had earlier thought that cost to be between $2.6 milliln and million and $9.3 million.

In 1979 dollars, the total pipeline project costs is pegged at $28 million Federal and state government grants will pay for 87.5 per cent of that cost figure, excluding an extra capacity for future industrial use in Pleasanton and Livermore.

The proposed pipeline, to be placed on the November 2 ballot valleywide, was necessitated by a state ruling that the valley must no dump its sewage into Alameda Creek. From there, it travels to the Niles Cone and pollutes the fresh water supply of Fremont and surrounding communities.

If the measure fails, valley governments could be libel for fines up to $6,000 a day, and a possible ban on future sewer connections, and thus on construction.

The bond revenue election November 2 will ask for $8.3 million, to be spread among Livermore, Pleasanton and the Valley Community Services District.

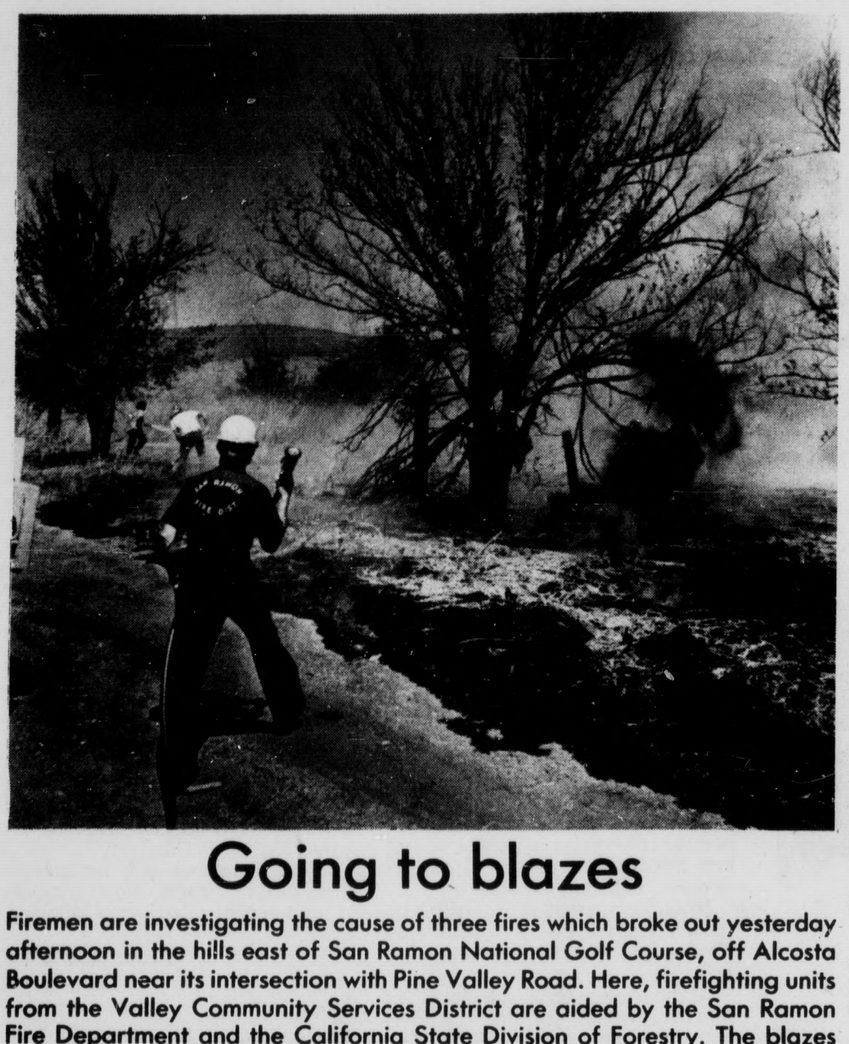
Actual local cost will be about $4.3 million, with the extra $4 million to cover contingencies as required.

The proposed pipeline would pump treated sewage into the San Francisco Bay, through an outfall in 18 feet of water near the San Leandro Marina.

LAVWMA members agreed to initially print 10,000 copies of an informational pamplet on the project. They will then be distributed to valley voters

Members said that two meetings between LAVWMA representatives and local citizen groups had taken place, and another informational talk on the measure will be given Tuesday at the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce meeting.

LAVWMA member and VCSD Director Ron Hyde said that the Dublin Chamber of Commerce had voted 5 to 2 yesterday not to endorse the pipeline measure "because they didn't have enough information on it."



Going to blazes

Firemen are investigating the cause of three fires which broke out yesterday afternoon in the hills east of San Ramon National Golf Course, off Alcosta Boulevard near its intersection with Pine Valley Road. Here, firefighting units from the Valley Community Services District are aided by the San Ramon Fire Department and the California State Division of Forestry. The blazes burned out about five acres of grass, trash and old lumber.

Pleasanton's Trenery Drive

Lawyer wins rezoning

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Pleasanton attorney John Corley apparently has won his long, drawn out battle with county supervisors over rezoning for his planned five-acre, "rural residential" home on Trenery Drive.

In a compromise agreement thought up by supervisor Joseph Bort, Corley and Albert C. Massa will be allowed to divide a 10-acre lot just outside Pleasanton's city limits on condition they both put $3,000 in escrow to cover the costs of eventually tying into city sewer lines.

The agreement, if it can be worked out between Corley and Massa and county counsel, also could apply to an adjoining 10-acre lot owned by George Chaves.

Supervisors will formally vote on the change next month.

Corley and Massa had been before the board and planning commission six times, Massa said, in trying to get the rezoning Supervisors John Murphy and Charles Santana had voted for the change, while Fred Cooper, Tom Bates and Bort abstained.

Bort admitted he was the swing vote and said he thought of the compromise just two days ago Corley said the offer took him by surprise.

"I think this will protect the county," said Bort, "and sort of set a pattern" for any similar requests in the future.

The county planning department's staff report, which warned of a threat to the underground water supply because of the septic tanks required in the area, "might be somewhat exaggerated," Bort admitted.

But he said he still feels it his obligation "to protect the county thoroughly in future years. The agreement allows (Corley and Massa) to proceed."

The escrow funds — and the covenant binding the owners and the county — "will follow with the land," said Bort, so that any future owners of the homes "can't get out of connecting to the sewers."

Pleasanton's general plan calls for expansion into the area after 1996. As the city nears the homesites, sewer lines will be available and the septic tanks can be abandoned.

Bort wants a connection when the lines are 300 feet away, while Corley prefers 200 feet. But both agree their differences will not block the agreement.

The precedent will not lead to a proliferation of septic tanks in the area, Bort said, although another half-dozen may be sought by other owners.

Division of three large adjoining parcels will be impossible because it would require a subdivision map, "and the board would never approve one if the homes had to have septic tanks," Bort said.

Madis ends suit over annex lease

LIVERMORE — Another bone of contention between David Madis and the city is clearing up

City Attorney Robert Logan is waiting for delivery of a letter of dismissal from Madis which will be filed with the courts to end a law suit over the lease for City Hall Annex.

Madis owns the property rented by the city for its annex. He had filed an unlawful detainer action against Livermore when the city agreed to insure the property, but did not specifically mention him as being a "name insured" for his additional protection.

He filed the action July 28.

An "unlawful detainer" suit, in effect, seeks to evict a tenant.

"He felt it was implicit in the lease," Logan told the Times "I agree it would be better protection for him and the city has no objection."

"He just never told us this before," said the city attorney.

Loran said he expects to receive the letter of dismissal from Madis today or Tuesday and would file it with the court immediately.

Burglary warrant out

LIVERMORE — A warrant was issued this week for the arrest of a man who escaped from Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center while waiting court action in one case, then allegedly got involved in another criminal action.

The warrant for George Dee Zahn, 39, address unknown, came six aea burglary July 16 at the home of Barry Baker, 1001 Murrieta Blvd., Livermore.

Baker reported a thief had taken jewelry, clothing, money, a 22 caliber rifle and ammunition, checks and a stamp collection. Total value of the missing property was estimated at $2,047.

The victim told police he found a bundle of clothing outside the rear of his apartment, including a Santa Rita arm band labeled "Richter, George ABB464 764665."

Police reports indicate that George Richter and George Dee Zahn are the same person.

Santa Rita prison officials told the Times Zahn had been detained at their facility from July 9 to July 16 when he escaped. He was waiting court action stemming from a July 8 arrest in Oakland on charges of vehicle theft and violation of parole.

In the court action, Carl Samuel Cragholm, 27, of 967 Wagoner, Livermore was bound over to Superior Court on charges of possessing restricted dangerous drugs and paraphernalia associated with the drug's sale activity.

Livermore police reports indicate a warranted search in Cragholm's apartment allegedly uncovered methamphetamines, marijuana and hashish, as well as two 22 caliber pistols.

Special school ends

"If there are children in the Valley between 18 months and 3 years old, we'll serve them in the future."

Meanwhile, the tots who have been at the preschool will be at county Special Education Department programs in Ladd School, Livermore, and other specialized classrooms, beginning next week.

"Eventually," says Mrs. Gaskill, "the county will be taking over the education of all retarded children from birth onward.

"The theory is that retarded children, like all children, have their greatest gworth and learning period before the age of 5. The earlier you get to them, the better."

She added that retarded babies are usually unresponsive to the sights and sounds around them and need special stimulation in order to learn.

ACAMR operates an infants' program in Oakland, affiliated with Children's Hospital, for all retarded babies in the county.

"The preschool program is designed to teach the children simple skills in a highly stimulating environment." she said.

"They need a lot of speech therapy. They practice motor development by using a balance beam, walking around the rim of a big tire. and doing other exercises for their physical coordination.

"Some learn concepts such as left and right, up and down."

Mrs. Gaskill's youngest child, now an adult, has a mental handicap. "But in those days," she says regretfully, "you used to be fearful you'd do more harm than good if you tried to teach them anything. People would blame themselves for causing the problem, and hide away their retarded children in shame.

"There are many, many handicapped adults who never went to school at all. Of course they can still learn now, but it would have been so much easier when they were young!"

The all - volunteer ACAMR boasts about 80 members in its Twin Valley chapter. About half are the parents of retarded children; the rest, interested friends and relatives. Their next meeting is Monday, Sept. 20, 8 p.m. in Vinwood Lodge on Fenton Street, Livermore. Regular meetings are the second Monday of the month at the same location.

The local group is always busy with fundraising and problem - solving. Currently, they are puzzling over transportation problems.

In addition to overseeing the preschool, the Twin Valley chapter sponsors the Garnet Austin Center on Research Drive (off East Avenue), a sheltered workshop and activity center where adults learn survival skills and get paid a small salary for working on contract projects such as collating manuals for the Lawrence Livermore Lab.

Seeing the preschool merge with the county Special Ed pepartment is "all very good as far as we're concerned," Mrs Gaskill says.

When ACAMR organized in 1970, "We didn't plan to get into direct services. But we ended up there."

Mrs. O'Dell will probably be going to work at another preschool in Fremont which will remain open. Aide Jill Schuey has already found a position in the infant program.

But the local kids will miss them both.

Eight months late

Solid waste plan finalized

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Better late than never, county supervisors yesterday agreed to forward to the state their eight - months - late solid waste management plan.

The plan, which outlines goals for recycling refuse and recovering energy from decaying garbage, was hammered out over three years under mandate of state legislation.

It calls for creation of a joint powers agency composed of representatives from the 13 cities throughout the county and the board of supervisors. If accepted by the State Solid Waste Management Board, it proposes recovering 67 per cent of waste material from garbage after 1980 and 92 per cent in 1990.

State board chairman Alfred M. Dias earlier this summer blasted the 30 counties in the state who failed to make the Jan. 1 deadline. He said he was "serving notice" that all plans must be submitted by Sept 15 or "appropriate action" would be taken.

The plan was drawn up by a citizens advisory committee and, after much haggling, cleared the county planning commission.

It stalled, however, when cities throughout the county refused to accept it without serious modifications. It eventually garnered enough support to clear the state requirement that it be approved by a majority of the cities comprising a majority of the county's population.

But once again it snagged, this time with board of supervisors chairman Fred F. Cooper.

Cooper said he objected to three City of Oakland representatives on the joint powers board and private scavenger company ownership of the garbage. Biodegradable refuse has become valuable in communities using pilot program energy conversion plants.

But Cooper missed yesterday's board meeting and fellow supervisors John Murphy, Charles Santana and Joseph Bort whisked the measure through. If the chairman had any complaints, they said, he could fire off letters to the state board.

County supervisors nix charter repeal measure

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Voters will not be given the option of repealing their 50-year-old county charter, county supervisors decided this week.

Conceding to threatened opposition from labor and the county's civil service commission, the board reluctantly voted 3-1 with one abstention to pull the repeal measure from the November general election ballot.

But board chairman Fred Cooper, leader of the drive to revert the county to general law, pushed through a motion to work on an "understanding" between the board and its opposition that could put repeal before voters in two years.

Voters rejected a similar move two years ago after labor and the civil service commission refused to back repeal.

Officials of the Service Employes International Union, which struck the county this past summer in the longest civil service employes strike in state history, the Central Labor Council and the commission threatened to work against the measure unless a long-term "memo of understanding" that would protect workers' benefits could be reached.

Union leaders, out to protect two charter sections that cover the "prevailing rate of pay" schedule and mileage reimbursement for workers, said "a climate could be created where this board or future boards will withhold hard fought for benefits."

"We have felt all along that the charter needed repealing," said CLC executive Dick Groulx, "but not at the expense of civil service employes."

"It's too bad we found ourselves up against the wall," said south county supervisor Charles Santana. "Even if we wanted to, I don't think this thing will fly. We'll have to try some other time."

Only supervisor Joseph Bort held out for the general vote, claiming it would be better to leave the measure on the ballot and, if it is beaten, revert to charter amendments.

Bort also fought the move to work out an "understanding" that would put the matter on the ballot in two years. He said he would reconstitute the charter review commission and go for amendments" than put off possible repeal for two years.

Valley supervisor John Murphy abstained on the vote to pull the ballot measure, and voted against Cooper's subsequent motion to work on the "understanding."

Monday's Labor Day picnic tops busy fairground month

The Alameda County Central Labor Council's annual Labor Day Picnic Monday, expected to draw upwards of 10,000, highlights a busy September at the County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton.

A bevy of picnics are scheduled along with the regular sports car club autocrosses and a major livestock auction on Sept. 12, the latter to be conducted by California Auction Sales.

County Fair Association directors have scheduled their annual barbecue for Friday evening, Sept. 10.

Alameda board okays Dublin business zone

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Some two acres of downtown Dublin property were rezoned yesterday by county supervisors from light industrial use to allow for general commercial development.

Iver R. Hilde's and James E. Lange's three lots at 6500 Village Parkway behind the "Bubble Machine" service station/car wash finally cleared the board on a close 3-1 vote. Only board chairman Fred F. Cooper, claiming he wants to wait for a general review of the valley, voted against the change. North county supervisor Tom Bates was excused.

The two owners said they do not yet have tenants or drawings for their plans, but that they will put in buildings for general commercial use.

In another action, the board continued for two weeks a request to rezone from condominiums to single - family - homes a 25 acre parcel on Village Parkway next to Dublin High School.

Owner Doyle Heaton asked for the continuance,

church news

United Presbyterian

PLEASANTON— The United Presbyterian Community Church, 100 Neal St., will meet at 10 a.m. this Sunday for church services and summer church school. Beginning Sept 12, there will again be two services — 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Rev. Robert Vogt's sermon Sept. 5 will be taken from John 3:16 entitled "Love gives — Love does not Condemn."

Regular church school will begin on Sept. 12 at both the 9:30 and the 11 a.m. services. At 9:30 a.m. the kindergarten through the second grade will meet at the Mirador Site, third grade at Kirk House, near the church, and fourth, fifth and sixth grades in the Social Hall of the church. Two year olds will meet next to the nursery.

Women's Circles and Mariners will be resuming their meetings this month. The Women's Guild Luncheon is to be held at noon on Sept 7 in the Social Hall. Babysitting will be available by calling 846-2986. All women are welcome. Alma Rasmussen will provide her usual fine Devotional Reading, and Guild members and visitors will enjoy a presentation on "Color Coordination" by Mrs. Wynne Facer.

Leaning on God—

Now, I believe the deep questions of your life can be answered by leaning on God and His plan for you and those you love. I've learned something else that's very important. It's this — for every need you face God has a solution and a delivery system to bring that solution to meet that need. And He's at the point of every need. So let's pray and expect an answer."

LIVERMORE— "The Restless Ones," considered the most successful motion picture yet produced by Evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown in Livermore on Sept 12 in the Community Bible Church, 5th and J Sts at 7 p.m.

With the accent on youth, this feature-length film deals imaginatively and dramatically with the teen-age crisis. With a background setting provided by the 1963 Billy Graham Los Angeles Crusade, and artfully woven into the story pattern, "The Restless Ones" is a hard - hitting bold approach to our social problems.

Here is a film which dares to be different, a story which will stir the heart and mind.

As one reviewer said, "Here is a picture that tells the world the truth and comes up with an answer, not an easy answer, but an answer from beyond us." Having seen "The Restless Ones," you will never be the same.

Valley Methodist

CAMP PARKS— Pastor Eva Dickover's sermon title this Sunday at Valley United Methodist Church, located at Camp Parks,is "So Intimate a Relationship." This is a Communion service so please try to join us.

Services begin at 9 a.m. with a coffee fellowship following at 10 a.m. Nursery care will be provided.

Methodist Youth Fellowship will meet Sunday evening at the church at 7:30p.m. Everyone is invited to our annual picnic on Sat., Sept. 11. at Mae Nissen Park, Livermore, at 12 noon. Sunday School for the children will begin on the 12th at 9 a.m.

Pastor Eva Dickover is available for counseling. She can be reached at 828-8686.

Adventist School opens

LIVERMORE— Sept. 7 marks the opening day of the Livermore Valley Seventh - day Adventist School located at 2828 Marina Ave., Livermore. In a rural setting, the school has an air of quietness about it.

Wes Follett and his wife, Penny, are the teachers. Wes, the principal, teaches grades 5 through 8, while Penny has grades 1 through 4. The Folletts show a real enthusiasm for teaching and for the welfare of each of their students.

The school offers a balanced program which emphasizes work on three levels as prescribed by God: head, heart and hand.

Besides the general study classes perfecting the education skills, there is daily instruction into God's word — the Bible, and a student - teacher work program in order to maintain the grounds and school buildings. The aim is to inspire wholesome and healthy attitudes and values.

Pastor Ralph Mc Gann of the Adventist Church has stated the importance and real need today of Christian education. Parents who would be interested in this kind of education for their children are invited to call the school now for further information. Phone 447-6269.

St. Clare

PLEASANTON— A new program of adult study will begin at St. Clare's Episcopal Church, 339 Rose Ave., on Sept 16 under the guidance of the Rev. Susan Bergmans.

The focus of these discussions will be the small book "The Desert is Fertile" by Dom Helder Camera. Dom Helder is the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Olinda and Recife in northeast Brazil, the poorest and least developed region of the country.

His book is only 76 pages long and yet is one of the most stimulating expressions of our Christian mission in this world that is currently available.

What he has to say can profoundly affect who we are as Christians, as individuals and as a community.

There will be six study sessions from Sept. 16 through Oct. 21 on Thursdays at 12 noon or in the evening at 7:30 p.m.

If you plan to attend, please call the church at 443-1145 in order to facilitate ordering books.

This Sunday, Sept. 5, Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. family service. Rev. William A. Smith will preach and Brian Roberts will assist.

Asbury to aid hungry

LIVERMORE — Asbury United Methodist Church, 4743 East Ave., plans to join hundreds of other United Methodist Churches from Northern California and Nevada in "Round-up '76" at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds on Oct. 16. Beef and dairy cattle, goats, sheep and rabbits will be arriving at the Fairgrounds when the members of these churches come for a day of study, fellowship, and dedication to helping relieve the scourge of hunger that afflicts so much of the world.

All of the gathered livestock will be shipped to locations throughout the world where it can help improve the lives of others. Asbury has set as its goal the raising of funds for two heifers and 400 chicks.

Labor Day Sunday is the final Sunday on the summer schedule with 9 a.m. worship. Using current theme of worships during the past year, in which we have explored the many ways one truth, one message is told, this Sunday's worship will present the 23rd Psalm in a variety of Bible translations, from a selection of hymns and songs which put the Psalm to meter and rhyme, and with several solos with widely differing accompaniment to the familiar words.

The children will remain in the sanctuary for the entire worship service this day, the last Sunday for them to do so.

St. Philip

DUBLIN — Sunday worship services at St. Philip Lutheran Church, 8850 Davona Drive, will be at 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at the early service on Sept. 5th. Pastor Sergei Koberg's sermon entitled "An Invitation to a Banquet of Flesh and Blood" will be based on John 6:51-58. A nursery is provided for small children. Bible study classes for all ages at 9:45 a.m.

Who wants an old railroad?

Did you catch that special report by Mike Zampa in Tuesday's Times? Using some great pictures by Mike Macor, our team of Mikes provided a thoughtful view from that abandoned railroad bed ... the one Southern Pacific no longer uses to run freight cars from Pleasanton to San Ramon, and beyond.

A tribute to this Valley's agricultural productivity of yesteryear, that "San Ramon Valley line" also provided commuters with a direct Livermore - to - Walnut Creek link, via the colorful "Skunk."

Now Interstate 680 provides a north - south commercial link for a frightening chain of trucks, and BART says they will take care of our commuter needs, someday, somehow. And so the Southern Pacific San Ramon line is no longer needed, or so they say.

The East Bay Regional Park District, which seems eager to grab off any and all excess land these days, has its bureaucratic eye on that SP line. Or at least the right - of - way. Would make a lovely scenic trail, they say. No matter that it is already a scenic trail, one with rails and bridges and crossings and all the other nostalgia of our railroading past.

Too bad, as our Mike Zampa once observed, that we couldn't find someone to preserve old railroad depots for use as railroad depots; and abandoned rail lines for use by trains, of one sort or another.

To carry a little make - believe freight. To transport a passenger or two. A family for a Sunday afternoon outing. A businessman tired of that freeway crunch. A senior citizen who finds nothing in this life so important as a train ride, from nowhere special to nothing in particular.

The San Ramon Valley line is that kind of railroad. With that kind of potential. Southern Pacific has found much of that line excess to their corporate needs. The farmers no longer have produce to ship. Not even the "Skunk" is missed, mostly because few of us now living ever rode the darned thing.

But we might. If the East Bay Regional Park had the foresight to keep that line. If somebody found an abandoned passenger train, to run on the abandoned track. And carry abandoned nostalgia buffs on a journey to our abandoned past.

Maybe if we just preserved the San Ramon Valley line for occasional use by BART board directors, CalTrans engineers and space - age designers, it would serve a useful purpose. To remind them of how it was, way back in the lazy, lovely days of yesteryear.

Stark's quiz

Sometime in the last several days you should have received one of those questionnaires that Congressman Pete Stark sends around to his 9th District constituents every now and then.

We urge you to take the few minutes required to complete that list, and mail it back to your Congressman as requested.

Granted, some of the questions are oversimplified. And it is also true these questionnaires have a way of showing up just in the incumbent's own re - election season.

But is it is still evident that we voters cannot criticize our representatives if we fail to provide them with any guidance as to our thinking on "the issues of the day." (One question that Rep. Stark overlooked was that dealing with the pending Congressional move to raise their own salaries, again. We're certain Pete would welcome your response on that or ... probably under "Additional Comments.")

Under the "Transit" category, keep in mind that extension of a BART rail line to Livermore would double the cost of bringing that line just from Hayward to Pleasanton, a reason why Bob Allen, the BART director who resides in Livermore, opposes that cross - Valley extension.

All in all a good questionnaire, and worthy of your immediate attention.

The price war

There's been a change in your newspaper recently, and it is one that could save you lots of money.

Advertising on behalf of restaurants and gas stations is not all zhat new; but when they start promoting the price of their meals or the cost of a gallon of gas, then "free enterprise" has really come to the suburbs.

There was a day when few merchants in these "rural confines" would ever stoop to mentioning prices in their advertising. "It isn't proper," was one popular explanation.

The major food chains were the first to offer full pages of their grocery prices, and the success of such enterprise is now history. Restaurants came to this "price consciousness" only when the quantity and the quality of those establishments made competition for customers a way of life. With gas stations, the "self service pump" brought a new wave of price awareness to those operators.

Pretty soon you might expect your drug store to offer "discount prices" on the "generic" title of some prescription drug that may have been costing you a fortune. The dispensers of prescription glasses will not be far behind.

Price is not everything. Quality, service, the way the merchant stands behind his product .. all these are still vital to the consumer who must look to year - in, year - out purchasing, and is less impressed with one day's bargain.

But in this era of double - digit inflation, the consumer has become more able to combine quality with price. Now suburbia is joining that trend, as witness the ads in your local paper Next time, check the prices. And tell the merchant when that offer was a good one. It all makes for lower prices, and needed break for the home maker.

Well! Who got here first?

FOCUS/Labor's picnic

Genuflecting

The organized labor movement could never be accused of practicing democratic procedures and temperance.

At least not the labor cartels of the 60s and 70s.

It has always been our thought that holidays such as the one we will mark on Monday, Labor Day, were for saluting that backbone of our society.

Labor Day is supposedly the one day in 365 that we can pay homage to the working force that has made this country the most productive on the face of the earth.

But I seriously doubt if it was ever intended to be a platform for the exalting of one political party.

True, speeches are an integral part of Labor Day ... but when the speakers all represent one party or one line of thinking is it not merely a biased exercise?

Such is the "theme" of Labor Day picnics of recent years at the County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton.

I have come to expect little more from anything involving the Alameda County Central Labor Council and its petulant mouthpiece Richard K. Groulx.

From those wonderful laboring folks that brought you the recent County employees strike (and who befouled the County Fair), comes now the "Annual Labor Day Picnic and Democratic Party Rally."

The latter title is the author's, but it will hold in the light of day after one scans the "lineup."

Heading the cast of Demos will be Walter Mondale, Jimmy Carter's running mate and liberal enough to get the saliva running in the mouths of big labor.

Groulx has also announced that Sen. John Tunney, running for reelection against S.I. Hayakawa, Rep. Pete Stark, seeking another term with Republican Jim Mills and P-Fer Albert Sargis as opposition, and Assemblyman Floyd Mori will all be present.

And don't be surprised if there are several "guest appearances"— maybe even by the Governor himself and the Original Publicity Phreak Alan Cranston.

As naive as it may sound, is there some reason why the county AFL-CIO presidium never invites, or never manages to lure, Republican, American Independent and Peace and Freedom party candidates to the annual Labor Day hijinx?

Is the party just for those the labor council is certain will genuflect to big labor dictates?

Could it be that the local AFL-CIO does not even choose to give the other candidates even the courtesy of a hearing?

If the Alameda County Central Labor Council were truly democratic, invitations would be extended to ALL candidates (of state and national offices being contested in the county), the governor of the state and any nationally-known labor leaders.

If Mondale, why not Dole; if Tunney, why not Hayakawa; if Stark, why not Mills; if Mori, why not Dave Funtsch.

The Pleasanton Labor Day affair is purportedly the largest union - sponsored event in the state. More than 10,000 AFL-CIO members and their families are expected to attend the 20th annual event.

What do you suppose would happen if someone pulled a "Chavez" and boycotted this event ... or picketed the entrances to the Fairgrounds like members of the Service Employees International Union did from June 27 to July 11 this year!

LIGHTER TIMES

"PSA stewardess.....gooooooodd!!"

Which only underscores what all us lecherous veterans of center aisle leaning and learing have known.

The direct quote above, which tells it all, comes from a member of the Japanese student group that had been visiting here in the valley during the month of August.

Organizers of the program, International Friendship Federation-USA, had the presence of mind to work-up programs for the group's Sayonara dinner and program last week.

Comments of the departing group were quite honest and open, for example:

"Husbands in America take good care of their wives."

"I think there are a lot of differences in American people. I like Japanese girls better than American women. American women are too frank."

I wouldn't touch that last one with a 10-foot pole.....

"I fell in love with America. He is 17 and rides a motorcycle..."

"Steaks are big in America, compared to Japan. Plate covered. No room for salad."

"We will not forget comfort of school buses."

Do you suppose there's any hidden meaning to that one!

"Nice people live in Livermore. I have chosen the best family. I love America."

"Most impressive place is Disneyland."

As it turned out, Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and Great America in Santa Clara got a good number of votes.

Besides PSA stewardesses and frank American women.

Police PR

The recent triple murder in Dublin not only opened the tragic life of Barry Braeseke to the public eye, it once again brought forth the "to hell with them" attitude of the sheriff's department administration in Oakland and San Leandro towards the press.

The main topic of conservation among valley members of the press covering the murders was not the case itself, but the rude and terribly incomplete job of disseminating information, under the direction of Sheriff Tom Houchins.

Deputies learned of the killings before 1 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24. Yet no one in the sheriff's department, including those supposedly charged with public relations, bothered to call any local newspapers to inform them. Reporters learned of the tragedy through talking with members of other police agencies, regular telephone checks to Santa Rita, or from other reporters.

Newspapers attempt to fulfill a necessary function by informing the public of major news events which could affect each person's everyday life, and covering a murder is no exception. If a deranged killer is at large, if more taxes must be levied to increase police protection, or if public assistance is necessary to find and arrest a criminal, then the press must be informed.

Capt. Robert Parker, in charge of the Braeseke case by all indications, made no provisions for public access to facts in the murder, although police reports by law are public information.

Parker was available to answer only one phone call from this reporter all day Tuesday, and admitted the next day that he "stopped accepting calls at three o'clock (p.m.)."

The captain knew well how busy he was going to be on the case, and should have designated another officer to handle calls by the press, public and families of the involved parties.

When asked two days later for some facts on the case, Parker said he didn't have the report in front of him. When pressed to answer, he indicated he knew the information requested but said, "I am just not going to answer any questions."

This same argument arose in the Chowchilla schoolbus kidnap case, when the bus was first discovered in Livermore. All press questions were directed to a deputy seated in an empty room; he had no information to give out, and in fact would ask each reporter if he had any news on the case.

Then the sheriff's department, with Houchins taking the lead, appeared on television to damn the press for its "intrusion" into what he apparently considered a private matter. But what of the families of the kidnapped children? Or other parents wondering if more bus kidnaps were planned as part of a plot?

Houchins screams, "Let us do our work, and stop playing detective!" What is he trying to hide? Does he simply want publicity, heightened by the tension of the lack of news until an arrest is finally made?

In its 1975-76 final report, the Alameda County Grand Jury reiterated its request that Houchins establish and carry out a policy on the release of public information. To quote:

"The sheriff is a public servant and he has an obligation to inform the public of the manner in which he is discharging his trust. In terms of gaining public acceptance, the sheriff should have learned by now that the days of reaction are over and the time for positive action has arrived."

The Grand Jury noted that after repeated requests for such a policy, Houchins sent the jurists a letter, "purporting to meet the intent of the Grand Jury's recommendation. The Grand Jury is not satisfied that this even approaches the intent of a carefully considered public information program," the report said.

The jurists then reissued its recommendation, asking for compliance on Houchins' part (which still has not been received):

"That the sheriff of Alameda County prepare a detailed statement of public information policy and procedure, plus a detailed plan for providing information to the public during fiscal year 1976-77, including objectives and proposed methods of achievement; that the policy and procedure statement for the fiscal year 1976-77 plan be submitted to the 1976-77 Grand Jury; and that a consultant (perhaps from other counties with such programs) be engaged by the sheriff's department to assist in preparing these plans."

I wholeheartedly agree with the Grand Jury's recommendation, and urge Sheriff Houchins to set up and maintain a responsible and effective public information office, for the lasting assurance of a free press and a free society.

round the town

The little book says — "Man's best friends are his wife, his back and his dog. The back, however, has a reputation for being unfaithful."

I have had my back for some years longer than I have known the Dachshund or the lady who now share my life. I must admit that, allowing for an occasional slip now and then, the lady and the Dachshund can be counted on, in a pinch.

The back, on the other hand, seems bound to pinch, no matter what. A man deserves something more, after all these years of togetherness.

"The pain comes down here and right through the big toe," I inform the doctor. He takes one long, wise look ... the $50 - per - visit variety .. and announces — "That means the problem is really way up here .. in the middle of the back. Messages are being sent down your nervous system through the leg and into the toe But that's not where the trouble is."

I am impressed. How a fella can take one look at your sore toe and decide the trouble is somewhere between the sixth and seventh vertebrae is beyond me. But that's why he's got a place in the mountains, and I'm still struggling with Holiday Inn.

"Tell me if you feel this," he announces, proceeding to run me fore and aft with a nasty little wheel, jagged teeth on the end of metal stick I feel it, he is advised.

Apparently that's good. The as - long - as - you - feel pain - you're - alive, theory. Now that I'm thoroughly convinced of his expertise, he is ready with the clincher.

"Take this little book and read through when you have the chance," he says, casually. I can't tell whether it's a holdover from his pre - med days as an encyclopedia salesman, or whether this is his own subtle way of telling me I'm terminal.

The book, turns out, is directed at those who labor with their back. Lifting, pulling, shoving, digging. Cartoons by Ken Colgan. All rights reserved.

Seems like pounding the typewriter can be just as damaging to the back as hauling 50 - pound crates. "Anything that places too much stress, for too long a time," is the key. For a very hefty piece of equipment, it is amazing just how fickle the back is. How sensitive to the slings and arrows of each day's fortune.

I am also startled to learn how the back's stress can be relieved, with very little effort.

"Those saloon keepers knew what they were doing when they built foot rails along the bar," the doctor informed me. Turns out the same information is in the little book, for free. Also the bit about "flex your knees and hold the package close to you" whenever you have to lift anything. I begin to see where I could have saved myself a few bucks, reading the book before I visited the specialist.

The book says my sleeping habits are atrocious. Yours too, most likely Never flat - out on the tummy. And not flat on your back either. Man is not built to go straight. The ape in us wants to crouch a little, knees flexed, shoulders hunched forward. Even in bed.

"Worst thing man ever did was to start walking on two legs." That from the doctor. I want to ask him if he is also an anthropologist, or maybe a Christian Scientist. I should have found out before I signed in.

"Lying on one's side with hips and knees bent relieves the swayback." That from the book. If you must sleep on your back, then build up the mattress under your feet with an eight - inch pad. Takes that unwanted pressure off the small of the back.

No mention of what all this does to your sleeping partner, who maybe isn't keen on having the foot of the mattress hoisted up like an orthopedic pad. I am now looking for a book that explains "How To Save Your Back And Your Marriage." Ann Landers might know.

I am dispatched to the therapist Mac and I are old friends. From a previous session, few years back.

"Same problem only a different source than we first thought," I inform him. He is sympathetic. I ask how he is. He tells me about his eye problems, in detail. Can't get used to the new bifocals I explain as how I skipped the bifocal kick, opted instead for two sets of glasses ... one for distance, one for reading. At least that way I don't fall down stairs, or bungle the two - foot putt, I report.

Mac listens, attentively. Promises to give my two - sets - of - glasses theory a try. I am hoping my first therapeutic session will be on the house. Professional courtesy.

"You are very tight down here and all through here," Mac informs me. They are muscles rarely used, little known. A lifetime spent in vigorous athletic competition . . billiards, golf, backyard hockey as a child, mixed doubles in later years ... and now to learn I am a muscle - bound cripple. Could this be the penalty for a vibrant youth?

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,

Make me a child again just for tonight."

The guy who wrote that must have read the little book. Only too late to do any good.

Opening lead — Q ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand that contributed materially to the victory of Ted Lightner and Mike Gottlieb in the 1932 life masters' pairs.

Playing at six notrump Mike simply knocked out the ace of clubs and collected five clubs, three diamonds and the major suit aces and kings for his 12 tricks and what turned out to be an absolute top score with no one close.

True, two of the three pairs who bid six clubs made it. The other pair lost to an inspired diamond lead by East. The bad diamond break beat the six diamond bidders, but the great majority of players stopped at the nice, safe three-notrump contract.

We show the hand here because it is one of those hands that are a cinch to bid right after the game is over. Even today we doubt if many pairs in the finals of the world's championship would get to that fine notrump slam.

We also doubt if Ted and Mike would get there if we gave them the hand to bid today. Somehow or other modern science would not allow for Mike's final jump to six notrump which certainly was the winning bid.

Linnell ponders starting hurler

HAMILTON, Ohio — The Livermore Merchants face a formidable task in the first round of the National 'A' Softball championships at the Main Ball Park here this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. (EDT).

The local team, representing the Oakland Metro area, will meet the Arizona state champions from Tucscon, a club that sports a 106-14 record this season.

Merchant manager Byron Linnell has not yet decided upon a starting pitcher, pending an examination of the Tuscon line-up. But, at a team meeting yesterday, he told the club he won't hesitate to pull an ineffective hurler.

After a 12-hour trip to Ohio Wednesday, Livermore was overjoyed not to have to play today.

"Thanks to the almighty draw, we'll get a night's rest," said veteran pitcher Ernie Rodrigues. "We'll be ready — the boys are all O.K and set to go."

Several other California teams join the Merchants in the tourney. Nava Lathing of Hayward, which won the local Regional tourney, CalWest of Mountain View, West Covina and Professional Chevron of Stockton are all entered.

Livermore could face a bit of friendly rivalry if they find themselves at some point matched against their traveling companions, Mammoth Mountain of Nevada, bracketed with the Merchants.

Also grouped with the valley squad are Richmond, Va.; Arroyo, Ill and Hayward.

Murcer's bat throttles Mets

NEW YORK — Bobby Murcer drove in a season's high five runs Thursday, two of them on his 18th home run, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 10-7 victory over the New York Mets in a game played in the rain.

Murcer drove in a first-inning run with a force out, forced in a run with a bases loaded walk in the third, knocked in two more with his fourth-inning homer and singled home a run in the sixth.

Mike Caldwell, the third Giants pitcher, appearing in his 42nd game, picked up the victory.

Jon Matlack, 14-8, was the starting and losing pitcher for the Mets, surrendering six runs in 3 2-3 innings.

Caldwell, who followed John D'Acquisto and Charlie Williams to the mound, pitched scoreless ball from the fourth through the seventh. The Mets got to him for four runs in the eighth, which was highlighted by an RBI single by John Milner and a two-run double by Pepe Mangual.

Both teams took advantage of the wildness of the starting pitchers. Before he was lifted at the end of the second, D'Acquisto walked four and made a pair of wild pitches, giving up single runs in each of the first two innings. Matlack gave up six hits and four walks before leaving.

The Giants scored in the first on a walk to Marty Perez, a single by Gary Matthews and Murcer's force. In the third Matlack was tagged for three runs on singles by Larry Herndon and Perez, consecutive walks to Matthews and Murcer, a sacrifice fly by Ken Reitz and a single by Gary Thomasson.

Murcer's home run off Espinosa highlighted a three-run Giants' fourth. Matlack gave up a leadoff double to Mike Caldwell, and following Herndon's sacrifice, he wild pitched Caldwell home. Then after walking Perez, Matlack was replaced by Espinosa.

John Stearns opened the eighth for the Mets with a double to right field against Caldwell. He went to third on Bud Harrelson's single to left. While Leon Brown was at bat, Caldwell uncorked a wild pitch, scoring Stearns. Brown then walked, but Caldwell got Bruce Boisclair on a called third strike and Felix Millan bounced into a forceout. However, when John Milner singled sharply to right field, scoring Harrelson, and making the score 9-5, Giant manager Bill Rigney removed Caldwell in favor of Randy Moffitt. Mangual greeted Moffitt with a two-run double, making the score 9-7, but pinch hitter Mike Phillips flied to right field.

In the ninth, the Giants picked up an insurance run off Bob Apodaca and Moffitt retired the Mets in order.

The start of the game was delayed 27 minutes by rain and the game was halted for 61 minutes by rain in the second inning.

Rangers failed in Bando bid

OAKLAND — Oakland A's star Sal Bando was nearly sold to the Texas Rangers Wednesday, but the deal collapsed when the Rangers refused to pay the third baseman $600,000 over the next four years, a newspaper has reported.

The A's controversial owner Charles O. Finley told Bando and Wayne Hooper, his agent, about the sale Wednesday morning and negotiations between Hooper and the Rangers began with Finley's okay, the Oakland Tribune said.

But when no compromise on Bando's salary demands could be made by the midnight deadline for waiver deals, Bando was forced to resign himself to remaining with the A's for the rest of the season.

Meanwhile, Finley's attorney, Neil Papiano, said he will ask a federal judge in Chicago on Tuesday for a temporary injunction that would complete the $1.5 million sale of Vida Blue to the New York Yankees.

On June 18 baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn nullified the sale of Blue, and the $2 million package of Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox, citing "the best interests of baseball."

Papiano said next week's court action will include a request that the Rudi-Fingers deal also be allowed to go through. A ruling could be made by the end of the week, he added.

Papiano said Finley will ask that Blue's sale be made retroactive to June 15, so that the lefthander, who beat the Yankees Wednesday night 5-0, will be able to pitch for them in the playoffs and the World Series. New York currently tops the American League East by 10½ games.

However, Blue told reporters Wednesday he won't report to the Yankees unless his threeyear contract is renegotiated. Blue, who has signed a contract with the A's, is slated to get $140,000 this year and next, $205,000 in 1978 and 1979.

Rayford's without a home

SAN JOSE — According to a recent commercial, "You won't find any surprises at Holiday Inn."

Take exception when you speak of the famous motel chain's branch at 4th street here. You'll find a surprising and articulate Rayford Roberson, a 6-3, 190 - pound linebacker on San Jose State University's powerful football squad.

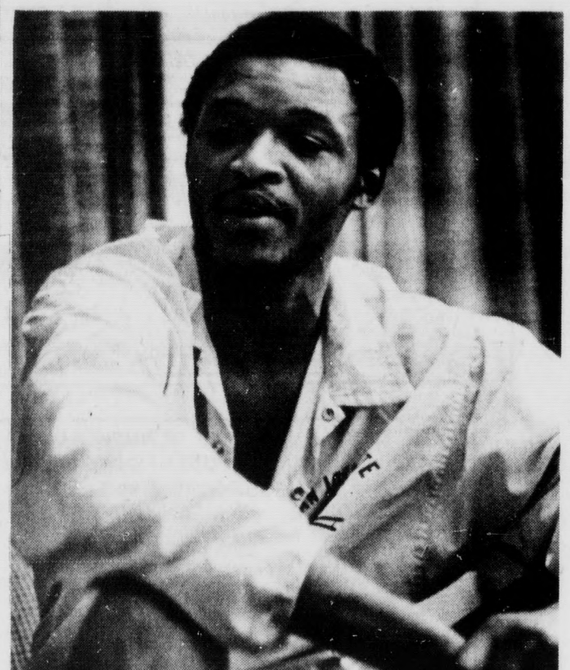
Roberson, a sophomore from Dublin High School and an administration of justice major, is all dressed up (in his football uniform) with no place to go.

While he and his 70 teammates drill for their upcoming opener against Utah State here Saturday night, Roberson said, "The coaches haven't found a place for me to live. I arrived too late to live in the dorms so I'm staying in the motel."

Roberson added, "Things should be worked out this week."

While Roberson was sorting out his housing problems, new head coach Lynn Stiles was preparing his gladiators for Saturday's contest.

Stiles assumed control of the defending Pacific Coast Athletic Association champions when Darryl Rogers accepted the head coaching duties at since Probation - stricken Michigan State.



Rayford Roberson is ready to hit somebody. (Photo by John Mercurio)

"I didn't know anything about Stiles before he got here," said Roberson. "But when I found out he was linebacker coach at UCLA, I knew he'd be great."

As summer practice concludes, Roberson's attitude towards the former Utah coach hasn't changed.

"He knows everything about linebacking techniques. You can make a good athlete a great one by teaching proper techniques," said the cheerful Roberson.

Comparing Stiles with the departed Rogers, Roberson said, "They are entirely different people. Rogers didn't talk very much. He didn't have to. You could FEEL what he was thinking."

According to Roberson, both coaches are in the same lockerroom when physical fitness is concerned.

"Both stress conditioning," noted the Spartan torpedo.

Conditioning, said Roberson, was the main reason San Jose outscored their opponents 117-47 in the fourth quarter last season.

"And," he added, "We haven't had a serious injury in practice this year.

"Coach Stiles said we're going to be the best conditioned team in America and I believe him."

The former All - East Bay performer, whose upper torso could be patented as a bullet - proof vest, was proud of his play last year as a freshman.

"I was in every game," he boasted, adding, "And I plan on starting very soon."

Confidence is on his side but all - league junior Vance Topps is in his way.

"He has a lot of experience, but I'll be replacing him soon," Roberson promised. "Don't get me wrong. He's good But I'm faster." Roberson then insisted, "And I'm only a sophomore!"

He's competing for a starting role now, but not long ago Roberson was competing for the family foodstuffs.

A recitation of his family members would make Guinness drool. No less than three sets of twin boys in addition to two other boys and a daughter swarmed the Roberson household.

Rayford lists his siblings like a p.e. teacher calling roll:

"Ronie, 27. Lester and Larry, 23, Troy and myself, 20. Marsha, 13. Keith and Kevin, 12 and Tony, 10.

"Sure, we all used to fight," recalls Roberson, admitting, "Sometimes I miss that. I really loved being in a big family."

But with each additional child came financial headaches for the black family from Wellington, Texas.

"We couldn't afford a basket for basketball so we bent an old clothes hanger and used rolled up socks," remembers Rayford. "We played as if it was the real thing."

It took little time for Roberson to conjure up the most influential people in his life.

"My brother Lester and Larry. They're the greatest athletes in the world."

Roberson's statement is not without reason. Lester and Larry were all - league at Wellington High in three sports before going on to star at Dublin.

Rayford said, "I made up my mind that one of my goals was to be a better athlete than both of them."

Despite his apparent success on the San Jose gridiron, Roberson appears to have a way to go to surpass his brothers' exploits.

Lester is playing basketball at Cal - Poly at San Luis Obispo while Larry piles up yardage as a running back for Hawaii University.

Not strangely, Hawaii made a bid for Rayford's football ability.

"Man, that's too far from home," said Roberson. "What's right for my brother isn't always right for me."

"I narrowed it down to Washington State and SJSU and chose San Jose because of its administration of justice department."

Roberson reflected on last season and believed the 31-7 upset over San Diego State was his high point.

"What a game! And it was on teevee," wailed the exuberant Roberson. The best running back he's ever collided with — Who else but — Cal's All - American Chuck Muncie?

"Yeah, Muncie for sure was the best," Roberson said — adding strangely, "Man, I hit that punk!" As if beleaguering a demi - god, Roberson retracted. "Don't write that! Say he hit me!"

Roberson would again like to play on the same level as the New Orlean's Saints recent acquisition.

"Yeahhhh," said Roberson smiling. "My No. 1 goal is to play professional football."

But his first chore will be Utah State Saturday night at Spartan Stadium. That is, unless Holiday Inn plans a few surprises.

Gladiator booters play in valley

Chabot College's soccer team has a large number of valley players on this year's roster so it's only natural that the Gladiators have scheduled some of their non-league games in Pleasanton.

The Gladiators will open the non-league season against Contra Costa College at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Sports Park in Pleasanton. Chabot will play College of Marin at 5 p.m. Sept. 10 at the same site.

Chabot, defending state champions, will be paced this season by All-Northern California star Kelly Clark, a sophomore from Amador Valley High School.

Other Chabot lettermen who come from the valley include Tim Wade of Livermore, Craig Heier of Dublin, Kurt Rohen of Dublin and Derrick Hoxie of Dublin.

Raiders tangle with Seahawks

OAKLAND — The Seattle Seahawks, fresh off a historic first win, make their initial Bay Area visit Saturday night to challenge the Oakland Raiders in the final weekend of NFL pre - season play. Kickoff at the Oakland Coliseum is set for 6 p.m.

Seattle posted a 17-16 victory over the San Diego Chargers Sunday afternoon to record their first victory. Except for a collapse against the Denver Broncos, the expansion Seahawks have been competitive in every game. dropping close decisions to San Francisco (20-27), Chicago (16-27) and Los Angeles (13-16).

The Raiders upped their 1976 pre - season mark to 4-1 with a 14-9 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers for Oakland's eighth win in the 10 game pre - season series between the local rivals.

The Seahawks are lead by Jack Patera, starting his first season as a pro head coach after serving assistantships with the Los Angeles Rams, New York Giants and Minnesota Vikings. During his seven years as defensive line coach with the Vikings, Minnesota made the playoffs six times.

Only three rookies are likely to be in the Seattle starting lineup against the Raiders Saturday night - two on offense and one on defense.

Jim Zorn, a talented left - hander formerly with the Dallas Cowboys, is the starting quarterback. Zorn has hit on 57 of 112 attempts in pre - season play, for a 50 9 percent completion mark, 754 yards and 5 touchdowns. He has also rushed for over 100 yards to date. Zorn completed 16 of 29 for 218 yards and the winning score in the victory over the Chargers.

Raider coach John Madden plans on again starting his regulars in this last pre - season test before the league opener against the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers. Ken Stabler (39 of 59 for 66.1 per cent, 463 yards and 5 touchdowns in pre - season play) will be at quarterback. Fred Biletnikoff, Cliff Branch and Dave Casper will be the starting receivers with Art Shell, Gene Upshaw, Dave Dalby. George Buehler and John Vella up front.

On defense, the probable starting lineup includes Tony Cline and Otis Sistrunk at ends, Dave Rowe and Jeff Winans at tackles, Phil Villapiano, Monte Johnson and Ted Hendricks at linebackers with Skip Thomas, George Atkinson, Jack Tatum and Willie Brown in the deep secondary.

Newberry upset winner

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Janet Newberry, a scrappy outsider from La Jolla, Calif., upset third-seeded Martina Navratilova 1-6, 6-4, 6-3 Thursday as a highlight to a raw, rainy day as the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

A crowd of 7,717, which had endured two two-hour postponements and sat for many hours through a drizzling rain, cheered her on under the lights in the center court at the West Side Tennis Club.

Martina, 20, of Beverly Hills, Calif., is one of the Big Four of women's tennis, ranking in the same class as top-seeded Chris Evert, Evonne Googaglong and Virginia Wade on the women's tour. Miss Newberry, a husky 5-foot-7 and 142 pounds, ranks 17th on the tour but is No. 8 in the national ratings.

A second minor upset in the women's competition was scored by Julie Anthony of Santa Monica, Calif., who beat Betty Stove of The Netherlands, 6-4, 6-3.

Vitas Gerulatis, 22-year-old New Yorker, won the feature of one of the few men's matches played, erasing Steve Krulevitz of Baltimore, 6-2, 6-2. Gerulaitis is seeded 16th.

Finally, a rash of first-round matches in women's singles and a few of the remaining men's opening contests were completed in weather that invited pneumonia.

The best women's match of the day was between Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., once the queen of the clay courts and seeded No. 5, and Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., who is essaying a comeback after a couple of years on the sidelines with a wrist problem. Miss Richey won 6-3, 7-6.

Earlier, Virginia Wade of Britain, who is seeded No. 4, and little Julie Anthony of Caifornia sneaked out victories.

Board echoes decision

The Pleasanton Joint School District board of trustees will stand pat on its original response to the California School Employees Association chapter 155 as regards the scope of negotiations and a prospective salary and benefits agreement for 1976-77.

In a brief hearing Wednesday night, concluded without testimony in a couple of minutes, the board referred CSEA chapter representative Wanda Robison to its original response of May 19. That response amounted to 44 pages and covered definition of terms, what the scope of negotiations would be limited to (wages, hours of employment and other terms and conditions of employment), a 6-page agreement form, classified salary schedule of 1975-76, classified calendar for 1976-77, leave and transfer provisions, and grievance procedure.

In the May 19 reply trustees defined "terms and conditions of employment" to mean health and welfare benefits, leave and transfer policies, safety conditions of employment, class size, procedures to be used for evaluation of employees, organizational security, and procedures for processing grievances. All of these would be negotiable.

The classified salary schedule for 1975-76 had five columns and 44 steps. The range, from step A in column 1 to step 42 in column 5 is $509 to $1,765 a month The hourly equivalent range is $2.94 to $8.37.

The classified calendar for 1976-77 lists 14 holidays with May 27 listed as the last duty day for K-5 instructional aides, June 15 for bus drivers and cafeteria helpers and June 22 for 10-month clerical and secretaries and library assistants.

In other business during Wednesday's brief meeting, trustees adopted starting times for schools, tabled consideration of a delegate to the California School Boards Association and a conflict of interest code resolution, and approved a contract with KQED television.

Trustees heard a brief report on transportation of sixth, seventh and eighth graders, but decided to maintain the present scheduling and review the situation after school starts.

As matters stand now, intermediate grade students in the district will have to walk or be transported by family members

Bus schedules for valley districts will run in Sunday's edition of The Times.

Under personnel actions, Rebekah Caplan, formerly an eighth grade English instructor at Pleasanton School, was appointed an English teacher at Foothill High School.
